Notwithstanding the designation of the electronic clinical record, HPF or paper as the repository of an element of the legal medical record, it is recognized that circumstances, such as computer system downtime, may require a document ordinarily created in electronic form to be created in alternative form and to be maintained as a part of another component of the record system. The documents which are defined to be part of the legal medical record shall be part of such record even if maintained in a secure location other than the record system designated above.
